An American in Paris, Barnes honed his craft with the late design legend Andrée Putman, serving as director of the firm before founding his own office in 2004. The Cornell University graduate deftly balances residential work with hotel projects, from The Ritz-Carlton to classical Parisian maisons to the home of Argentine soccer star Javier Pastore. His recent unveilings, a boutique hotel in Paris and a tasting center for Champagne Billecart-Salmon in Mareuil sur Aÿ, fit in with his impressive roster of tasteful interiors. Barnes describes his refined, worldly style as “the elegant handling of light and unexpected and noble materials, which confers upon unique and exclusive spaces an innovative approach to luxury.”
